

Scottish Ranking Series

The Scottish ranking series runs from the 1st of January to the 31st of December and consists of all Scottish wildwater races within that period. At each race points are gained and the best 5 results through the year per competitor added together to find the series winners.

Each class winner at a race gets 1000 points and subsequent competitors get points calculated by comparison of their time to the winner. The formula can be found below.¹

The Scottish ranking series can contain any race length from 30 seconds onwards, limited only by available water and the organiser's imagination. Races can be in either a time trial or a mass start format. The only exception to this is the Scottish Championships event, which will follow the traditional format of a sprint (roughly 30sec-2min) and a classic (roughly 8min-30min), both as individual held start time trials.

These races are open to all ages, all boat types, and you do not have to be Scottish to take part. Individual races may have prizes for slalom boats or <9ft boats, this will be advertised in advance.

Results and event information will be found on the SCA WWR page, and additionally on the Scottish Wild Water Racing facebook page.
